Finest One Hundred Dollars.
"Dr." John Till, the Somerset "plaster healer," was fined $100 and costs in Justice E. J. Wall's court at Glenwood Tuesday or given the alternative of spending three months in the county jail. He took neither but took an appeal to the circuit court, put up a $500 bond and was released. The specific complaint against Till was that he had "practiced medicine" on John A. Larson of Glenwood. Larson was a witness and testified that Till had treated him for rheumatism and had cured him. A number of people in Stevens Point are said to have received treatment from Till and some report being much benefited. —Stevens Point Journal.

Another Candidate for Mayor.
A meeting was held at the court house on Friday afternoon and the name of Geo. W. Davis was suggested as a candidate for mayor at the coming election. Mr. Davis was interviewed and found willing to run and it was decided to place him in nomination.

There are a number of people in the city who were not satisfied with the candidacy of Dr. Pousinville, being of the opinion that he would not close things up tight enough to satisfy those of a radical turn of mind.

We believe that Dr. Pousinville will give the people of the city a good, conservative administration, but at the same time up a man if they others for putting up a man if they want to vote for him. About the only privilege that the American citizen has over the resident of a good many other countries is the good chance to vote for any man he wants for office, and we believe in giving him all the chances there are.

Under the caption, "The Republican Party Pathway Explored," Bryan's Commonwealth published the following which should be read by every American citizen, who takes enough interest in his country to follow its history. The article says:

"So many requests have been made for copies of 'The Commonwealth,' dated October 12, 1904, and containing the following article, that no more copies can be supplied. The article is therefore reprinted in order to supply the demand:

G. Olney, a Mexico, Mo., reader, writes: "General Grosvenor, speaking at our church, said that no more tariff and hard times are found co-existing throughout our history—always found together. Without any dates he supported this statement of the usual old stock-in-trade argument of the protectionist. Is he right?"

General Grosvenor is mistaken. The reason he did not give the dates, is that the dates would have confounded him. The truth is that every panic since the civil war originated under republican rule and developed under republican legislation.

The great panic which gave "Black Friday" to history occurred during the month of September, 1893, when the republican party was in power.

The great panic marked by the failure of Jay Cooke & Co., occurred in September, 1873. Then the republican party was in power and eleven months prior to the beginning of that panic that party had been re-elected to power.

The "panic of 1893" began long prior to that year and, indeed, long prior to the presidential election of 1892; and it is a fact, although republican orators and republican organs try to forget it, that the so-called panic of 1893 began and played its greatest havoc under that famous tariff law known as the McKinley bill.

It may be well for Commonwealth readers to keep readily at hand some of the facts and figures relating to this question.

The republican party was restored to power March 4, 1893.

The McKinley tariff law bill became a law October 3, 1890, and remained in effect until August 27, 1894.

The Wilson tariff law, enacted by a democratic congress went into effect August 27, 1894.

If any one will take the trouble to examine the republican campaign text-book for 1903, page 135, 136 and 137, she will find considerable space devoted to a statement of business disaster from July 15, 1893, until November 14, 1894.

To Control Bovine Tuberculosis

In a special bulletin entitled "To Control Bovine Tuberculosis," Dr. Russell, of the University of Wisconsin, describes the symptoms of the dread disease, its causes, the usual mode of introduction into herds, and the proper methods of controlling it.

"The disease occurs most frequently in cattle and swine," says Dr. Russell. "And its ravages have become so marked in late years that every stockman should be familiar with the conditions under which the disease develops. In both cattle and swine it is exceedingly difficult to recognize tuberculosis in its early stages, but as it progresses in the body, loss of weight occurs, and in the later stages, emaciation. In the disease is present in the lungs, as is usually the case in cattle, a hacking cough develops. The lymph glands may show evidence of enlargement, and the coat becomes rough. When an animal gradually 'runs down' in condition without apparent cause, particularly if the trouble is accompanied by a hacking cough, tuberculosis should be suspected. In case the animal dies or is slaughtered, an examination of the internal organs should always be made.

"Even in the moderately early stages of the disease, it can usually be recognized by the presence of enlarged, hardened glands and, when open on the body, yellowish, cheesy material. Upon cutting open the body of a diseased animal, the lungs are found to contain yellowish or grayish yellow cheesy material. In the lungs, the cheesy material is often firm and hard, and in advanced stages, broken down into a creamy pus.

"Like all other communicable diseases, tuberculosis is produced solely by the entrance of a microscopic plant organism, the bacillus of tuberculosis, into the body of a susceptible animal. The germ multiplies rapidly in the tissues and is thrown off in the feces and from the lungs. An animal suffering from the disease is therefore spreading it from the time the tubercles or nodules in its body begin to break down until death occurs. Not only is the infected animal itself a source of danger, but the germs are distributed throughout the stable, transmitting infection to healthy stock even after the diseased animals are removed.

"The disease is usually introduced into a herd by the purchase of an animal in the early but unrecognized stages of the disease, or by the use of infected factory by-products, like skim milk or whey. Over 200 cases have been found in Wisconsin where tuberculosis was introduced in herds by newly bought animals from outside. In some cases by pure bred stock. Such an increasing number of herds have been involved that the public auction and private sale have become a menace.

"Proper sterilization of factory by-products used to feed young stock should prevent the danger of spreading the disease, and dairy factories should voluntarily take this precaution. Farmers should apply the tuberculin test to their herds, and if the animals are found free, all stock introduced should be tested before being admitted to the herd. For young stock and hogs, skim milk separated at home or pasteurized at the factory should be used. If the disease is found in the herd, the affected animals should be separated and disposed of, and the barns disinfected. In the case of valuable animals, healthy calves may generally be secured from roanette cows if the calves are separated at birth and fed on boiled milk or on the milk of healthy animals."

"The panic of 1893, under republican rule and twelve years of high tariff taxation, was the most disastrous and the period of business depression for five years thereafter was the most severe of any in history. It was officially estimated that 3,000,000 workmen were out of employment. Bankruptcy was widespread. A tidal wave of ruin and distress swept over the country.

"From 1881 to 1886, under two republican tariffs, there were labor strikes involving 22,300 establishments and 1,323,293 workmen. Of these strikes 9,439 were for an increase of wages and 4,844 against reductions of wages.

"Mr. Reed's party tinkered the tariff in 1883. In that year there were 9,384 business failures. In 1884, involving $174,874,000. In 1885, there were 10,908 failures, involving $236,343,000. In the next year, still under the republican tariff and currency laws, there was a general business depression. More than 1,000,000 men were out of employment.

"In 1890 the McKinley bill was passed, and there were 10,673 failures in that year, and 13,394 the next, with a total of nearly 300,000,000. The tariff was raised nearly fifty per cent, but wages either stood still or declined, while the prices of necessities advanced. The protected manufacturers kept all their 'bonus' as usual.

"Tramps and trusts, the twin products of a monopolistic tariff, were practically unknown in this country until we had endured a dozen interrupted republican rule for a half-century.

"The worst labor troubles, the bloodiest riots, the most destructive strikes, the most brutal lockouts ever known in any country have occurred here under the high tariffs, bought, made and paid for by the contributors of the republican campaign funds."

It might be well for Commonwealth readers to clip this statement from the Commonwealth and have it in evidence for the next time the republican neighbors who may have been deceived by the Grosvenor claims.

The classified heading "Soldiers of a Day" has taken its place among the devices by which the modern newspaper condenses information in order to get all the news within the compass of its crowded pages. During the year 1907 there were nearly 11,000 cases of suicide reported in the press. The average per day was just about thirty. That appalling record marked a small advance over 1906, when there were more than 10,000 instances of self-destruction similarly reported. Suicide has ceased to be an exceptional thing. It has gained an alarming hold upon a restless race. In 1907 the number exceeded that which included all the homicides, lynchings, hunting accidents and sporting or holiday casualties of the twelve months. The loss from mining accidents might be added to this list and still the record of suicide would take precedence. —Chicago Tribune.

President's Message.

"It is a grave message and needed at this time," says William J. Bryan. "All friends of reform have a reason to rejoice that the president has used his high position to call attention to the wrongs that need to be remedied. He has discovered the rampant sore in our national life. He has pointed out the corrupting influences that flow from predatory wealth and from the monopolistic enterprises which have given unequaled riches to the few, who by controlling great industries of the nation, have leveled tribute upon the whole country."

"There ought to be enough of Roosevelt Republicans in the two houses to join with the Democrats and ensure some remedial legislation at this session." If there be not the public ought to know it, so that when the next Republican national convention indorses the present administration the hypocrisy of the indorsement will be understood.

The president has discussed the relative spheres of the state and the nation. I hope that in the measure which may be introduced in his response to his appeal there will be no attempt to take from the states any power that they now have.

"The Democrats are in favor of the fullest employment of the power vested in congress, but they want national remedies added to state remedies and not substituted for them. If the president's Republican friends will join with the Democrats in devising legislation which will be effective and national power of congress, great good may be accomplished before congress adjourns."

It is especially successful in cases of croup. Children like it and my customers who have used it will not take any other." For sale by Daily Drug & Jewelry Co.

Special Notice to Subscribers

On Dec. 4, 1907, the Postmaster General issued a new ruling to take effect on and after Jan. 1st, 1908, which briefly is as follows:

All newspapers received at any postoffice addressed to a subscriber, who is in arrears over three months on a daily subscription, six months on a triweekly, nine months on a semiweekly or one year on a weekly, shall not be accepted as second class matter, but must have postage affixed at the rate of one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

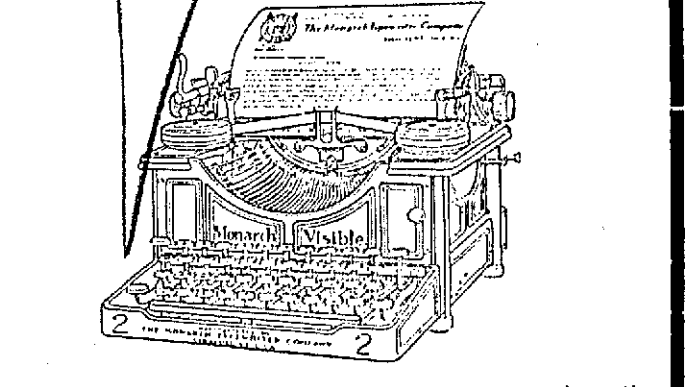

In compliance with this ruling all publishers will be obliged to either affix a one cent postage stamp on every paper mailed or discontinue sending the paper after Jan. 1st, 1908 to all subscribers whose subscription account is in arrears.

As the postage rate of one cent per copy is virtually a prohibitive one all TRIBUNE subscribers now in arrears are urged to immediately pay up and renew their subscriptions for the ensuing year.

March will come again, Quaker's blood was let: of Bryan will hide out the paracet; he sees them lurking there goes their full intent just like his friends all hope run for president.

candidates republican will stand again, and the portly Mr. Taft will show a hand—the whickerlets of Mr. will float upon the breeze, that sailed Magellan's straits; the western east; the cruise of Cortez will grimly be ghost, and the fleet will run on the Mother Latin author of foreign counts and sports and fold, will come to marry more of our dead cast, a count will marry a million and a discount (two for three and and girl, (and horse laugh loud,) will all cut to sea; and while the gods give Bout one—just one—chaunce, alack, we'll all steal off cut ourselves quite low down back.

country papers will get used Uncle Sam's mandate they will not hold readers who they paid up to date; the government will not assist in securing things somehow, all subscribers made so mad by never will pay now.

March was the first month of the year, and was named from the god of war. Mars looked a twin brother to Richard P. and he was the regular delegate to the peace conference at Hague. He was supposed to be father of Romulus, the founder of Rome, but he was not; the young man's godfather. In the warfare it was customary to wear a good bronze bust of Mars on a good, bronze bust of Mars on a good field and then fight for it. The comedy of life will be about it it has been the men will labor and night, and the wives of men will have a club for every day, and cover cease to go to work to talk of many things if she should not know; they'll be a lecturer from Greece, another from Japan, another on the Ronaical, a novel on man; they'll hire a of long-haired freaks to unlearn the doctrine, they'll work on papers every morn, and look up things at night; and their husbands will get caught cold and suffer ridicule—and the children will grow up like slaves, while Mammy goes to school.

we money indelicately loaned will faithfully keep Lent, and a lady teacher will sit on the pin when it is bent in the at when the principal responds to screams heard through the house, he'll not tell him what happened, but will say she saw a mouse.

Until the 21st, March will be under the influence of the zodiacal sign known as Pisces the Fish. Pisces will induce his relative, Styvesant, to take the Illinois Central fight into the U. S. Supreme Court, while E. H. Harriman will be snatched with two bun lamps, a de-railed back-home, and a swift kick in the caboose.

After the 21st, March will be under the influence of Aries, the sign of the bull. Under this sign, all the presidential race, and Uncle Joe Cannon will come out of last place and make the President put two more burrs in the spacious bosom of Mr. Taft's pants.

Persons born under Pisces drink like a fish and vote wet. They make excellent subordinates, like Friday and Leb. They can say no, and it is foolish to expose them to any more insurance, for they won't take it. They are very cautious, and always take seats near the fire escape.

Persons born under Aries always think before speaking, and they never say anything. They are good organizers and generally belong to the Anti-Saloon League. They make good lawyers, and generally get the case continued until they can elot the prosecuting attorney.

The Vernal Equinox will come, and the Irish will parade; The booming bullfrog will resume His music in the glade, The mole will burrow in the lawn, And the rash duck hunter too His caller while pneumonia drills A leak hole in his boot.

And then the gentle spring will come and the poet will sway, with swelling breast and bliss his hum and Muse attended lay, and the hen will announce the dawn, and the hen will scratch the dirt, and everybody will say on a third, and everybody will sweep the lawn and washout will appear, the train and throw it down the bank; the gander and the goose will bawl; the mow will be wet, and the spring-intoxicated cow will turn her head to the sunset. The house will be cleaned up again, the robins come to drive, and the husband will eat bread and cheese behind the heart will stove. The young man's heart will beat for love, and the widow in her bed will find a man and seize his hand where Estella were the weeds.

And then sweet April will return, and John D. get in the and pay his money in installment. That thirty million fine.

Sufferer Completely Cured by Use of D. D. D. External Wash.

One of the most remarkable cures recently credited to the D. D. D. Prescription in Chicago.

E. HUCK, 1558 West Madison under date of Dec. 1, 1907, as follows:

"I suffered three years with Weep-eczema. I started with a little my knees and spread fast over whole body. About hundreds of letters and went to every good I heard of, but kept getting nothing would stop the itching and burning.

"I tried to stay in bed from the 1st of May to the middle of July. I tried D. D. D. Prescription. It is the 9th of December and I am fully free from the terrible disease. D. D. D. saved my life.

"When I began this treatment, I was afraid of me. I looked so horrible. My husband was the only one who would take care of me. D. D. D. stopped the itch at once so I sleep, which I had not done before. Then I began to get better and now my skin is clear and healthy as a spot anywhere."

"A few drops of D. D. D. Prescription applied to the skin brings out—nothing to swallow or drink. I am much in debt to the D. D. D. Prescription. The cleaning D. D. D. Soap. I am in E. Daly's. Get a bottle today or have any skin disease. Begin your cure at once.
